BLIND LOVE.

An intensely Interesting Story by the Great Master of Fiction, will be published in the "Sunday World" as a Serial, beginning June 30.

WILKIE COLLINS,

"The World" has secured the exclusive rights to this new romance for North America. Newspapers desiring to share with us in the publication should address at once for terms " World Publication Department."

THE IMPORTANCE OF CAUTIOUS ACTION.

The release of Mononey and McDonald. who for five days had been imprisoned on suspicion of being implicated in the Chonin murder, because, upon view they could not be identified, points a moral. The lesson to be drawn from this incident is, that there is great need and merit in going slow in matters affecting the personal liberty of citizens.

Upon a vague hint of the possible con nection of two men with a shocking crime. and without a scintilla of evidence of their guilt, they were thrown into prison. Immediately upon their arrest a requisition was made by the Governor of Illinois upon Gov. HILL for their extradition. To sustain this requisition no show of guilt was made, no indictment had been found and there was an utter absence of everything save filmsily founded suspicion.

At this juncture The Evenine World sounded a note of warning and insisted that these men had rights which must not be rathlessly invaded. The Governor was the results of the sounded and described the sounded and there was sunder and making a wreck generally of a true, neatly appointed craft.

ruthlessly invaded. The Governor was urged to go slow, and before surrendering the suspects to insist upon the production of some tangible proofs of their criminal conduct. We did so. For his caution he was criticised in some quarters.

Now that the case against Mononey and Mc DONALD has collapsed THE EVENING WORLD felicitates itself upon its sound position, and congratulates Gov. HILL upon his firm attitude in the matter.

THE SUBURBAN.

At length the day has arrived when the long-talked of beavily bet on and intrinsically interesting "Suburban" race will be run at Sheepshead. In one respect it is the event of the scason. The purse for which the fieetfooted racers will compete is not so unusually large, but the feverish interest in the event is caused by the long period during which bets have been made thereon, and the kaleid- COBURN LOCKED UP AGAIN. oscopic shifting of favorites. An immense amount of money will change hands when the result is announced.

With its charac cristic enterprise Tur-EVENING WORLD will give the completest. most graphic, and entertaining account of the great sporting event.

AN UMPIRE COMMITS MURDER

That a baseball umpire, that much-maigned, hooted at, badgered and threatened creature, could by any possibility ever resent the insults heaped upon him has, seemingly, never entered the minds of kicking players and howling partisans. That he can, however, has been demonstrated in a Tennessee prove a salutary check upon the quarrelsome propensities of ball-players. The idea of an umpire with a knife in his boot and revolvers strapped about him is one with great power to subdue manifestations of displeasure.

If these death-dealing implements are to become part of the umpire's equipment, ball fields will become places where invalids can go for absolute quiet.

CYCLONE, AHOY! OUR BABIES' FUND. IS HE THE BURKE? LOST IN THE STORM

Left Florida.

Dunn Has His Fears.

We Have Succeeded in Shaking Old Humidity for a Few Days, They Say.

Sergt. Dunn evidently had the Suburban in his mind when he mixed to-day's dose of weather. It is cool, bright, fresh racing weather. The Titania and Katrina will scoop a lot of it in to stiffen their sails with down the Bay and Terra Cotta and Raceland will run out their tongues into it when the jockeys crowd them under the wire.

'Fair, no rain, cool." That was the Sergeant's next bill for to-

But while we are having such a blooming time a cussed, cantankerous cyclone, with a kick to it like a double-decked mule, has been playing the deuce down around the lower Atlantic States.

It raised its head in Cuba on Sunday, and laughed at the idea of its being the day of rest. Then, with a snort, it kicked up its beels and capered right across the island like two-year-old. It skipped across to the Gulf, and raised the old boy around the east-ern section of that body of water. It churned things up lively, but this was only whotong its teeft to bite better in more damageable the insides out of the groves and left aswathe of rum behind it sike Bro dignagian bridal wreath. Then it departed, leaving a perfume like a holy memory behind it.

After it had torn the Gulfall up, it charged right across Florida with a whoop and a rush. It ripped up the poor little orange trees, tore the insides out of the groves and left a swather

The cyclone hadn't begun to be winded yet. It had only loosened its joints. With another shrick like a bursting calliops it flug away from Florida out in o the Atlantic Accelone nearly always which around the Accelone nearly always which around tic. A cyclone riorida out in o the Atlan-iu this serpentine way. In firting its tail this way it gets more of a slap at things it whacks.

whenever it hits it, and dudes had better get their new straw hats insured.

Sergt, Dunn says there is a chance that the giddy thing will get so far out to sea that it will be all wo n out by the time it works in to the coast again. There is a high Cauadian barometer that is like fixed bayonets against the return to shore of the cyclone. It is usture's own defense against her rebellious runaway. Hence we may'ut tget blown to plecos by the cyclone at all.

Another little storm is whisking around up at the Northwest and trotting in a straight line for Minnesota. It is a weak mg, though, and will die young on its travels.

All along the Atlantic coast by the Cerolinas and up and down the Mississippi valley it is ranning merrity and scaking the sad inhabitants. The rainfall all along the Atlantic scaboard has been very plenteous. At Jacksonville there was a fall of 1.40 inches; at Jupiter, Fla., it was 1.74 inches; at Charleston 1.40, and at Hatteras, 1.24.

Local weather here in town to-day was 62 degrees at 8 A. M., with a molest little charge of humidity that only totted up to 59. So we are in for a comfortable day, and if the cyclone doesn't turn up everything will be lovely.

There are many demands upon the charitably disposed just now, but no appeal is stronger or goes more directly to every heart than that in behalf of the sick children of the soothing similght and stifled with impure air, unskilfully attended by kind but ignorant mothers because of the poverty which pels them to dispense with the attendance of paid physicians and improperly and inadequately fed.

And this is why The Evenino World fund is started for defraying the expenses of a corps of energetic and enthusisatic physicians whose duty it shall be to hunt out and minister to these laby sick ones, suffering the ills and aliments of weather.

It should be borne in mind that the field is boundless, and that the larger the corps the more lives can be saved and the more suffering can be all ayed.

The heated term is well started, and haste should be made by those who intend to contribute, that this charity may do its work speedily and before it is too iste. There is room for more names on the list of the good, and every reader of THE EVENING WORLD can give his mite.

Resist Extradition.

est Suspect in the Cronin Case-

CHICAGO, June 18 .- The sensation of the day is still the arrest in Winnipeg, as told in complice, if not one of the principals in the Cronin murder.

It is now stated that Burke is the man for whom Moroney was arrested a few days ago. and that the arrest of the New York suspects was nothing more or less than a device to throw the reporters off the track while the real assassin was being pursued in Canada. It is suspected, however, that the police say this merely to cover up the fizzle which say this merely to cover up the fizzle which they made in the New York cases.

Burke, it appears, has been shadowed for some time past by a Chicago detective.

It was discovered that he was in this city at the time of the murder of Dr. Cronin, and that his movements for everal days after were very suspicious.

He moved around from one boarding house to another, and seemed to suddenly come into po-session of large sums of money. He was also an intimate friend of P. O. Sullivan the iceman.

Woodruff, it is said, put the police on his track, and after his photograph was secured and identified by several persons, including Martinsen and Mrs. Conklin, as the man who owned the furniture at 117 Clark street, and the one who called for Dr. Croniu on the eventful evening of May 4, the case was eventful evening of May 4, the case was quietly worked up.

After Burke had raised all the money he could get be bought a ticket for Liverpool by the way of Moutreal. His taking the train for Winn peg threw he officers of the scent as first, but they struck the trail shortly and telegraphed to Chief McCres, of winnipeg, to arrest him, which was done just as he was boarding a Montreal train.

He will be sent back here as soon as extradition papers can be procured, and the greatest interest is manifested in the prospect of new and startling developments.

The Burke that is wanted, should this prove to be the man, is a hot-headed young Irishman about twenty-eight years old, and just the sort of person who would be selected to execute a job like the removal of a suspected spy or traitor.

He has a fanatical devotion to the Irish cause and is a member of the Clan-na-Gael. He was born in Ireland and has only been in this country three years, but he is known in Chicago as a desperate fellow and a dead boot.

He left Chicago the day after Dr. Cronin's funeral.

There are so many contradictory stories affoat as to bis identification by people in this city that there is some doubt as to whether the police have really got the man they want.

They have to lowed up so many false cines, particularly these given by Woodruff, that very little confidence is now placed in the tips given by the horse-thief.

It is now believed by most people that the latter's last confession was a cock-and-bull story, made out of whole cloth, and simply an elaboration of some of the theories that have been abandoned by imaginative reporters.

Burke is a tough-looking customer, according to the Winnineg despatches. He has several scare on his head, a long one on his fore-head and a bullet wound in his neck. He did not register at the hotel where he stopped.

The examination of witnesses before the Grand Jury is still going on.

John Gilbert is dead and the American stage has lost one of its most substantial figures in this earnest, intelligent old actor, whose careful studies and indomitable perseverance won for him more enduring success than the will-o'-thewisp-like scintillations of senius could have

The life of John Gilbert, teaches an admirable lesson. It should be read and remembered by every member of the profession that he for so many years adorned. It is pregnant with instruction, at the present day every third-rate actor appears to consider himself a genius, and the tendency to pose as such is so painfully to be seen.

Mr. Gilbert was willing to subordinate himself to his art. He acknowledged its existence and bowed to its dictates. His art came first, then he recollected himself. His excellent performances in the old comedies that were recently revived at Wallack's Theatre by Mr. Abbey will long be remembered.

John Gilbert was an artist in the real meaning of the term. He was one of the few men who enjoyed the results of their labor. He lived to a good, ripe old age, in harness almost to the last, and his death, neither ead nor deplorable, will yet be mourned by a nation. He has left the story of his life. Let the leaders of the profession preach it until its beauties are fully under

The sand scow threw out a line and took the rowboat in tow. The rain began to all and the men took down the leg of mutton sail, spread it over the boat and got under it for shelter.

ROSE'S LOVE-DREAM OVER. FAIR MISS COGHLAN AND HER HUSBAND

Miss Rose Coghlan has for some time been pointed out in the theatrical profession as a shining example of what matrimony will do for an actress. From the giddy ranks of dramatic spinsterhood Miss Coghlan suddenly and quietly graduated into matrimony with Mr. Clinton J. Edgerly, a well-to-do, athletie, young business man.

ARE DRIFTED APART.

This happened about four years ago and Miss Coghlan instantly settled down into humdrum matrimony, just as though she liked it, "All the world wondered," but Mrs. Clinton J. Edgerly let it wonder. She was satisfied apparently with her Clinton, and life in her house was generally alluded to as something almost holy in its domesticity.

When Miss Coghlan first starred, Mr.

Edgerly gave up his business and directed her tour. He was an agent for a Massachusetts life insurance company, of which his tathor is President. Lass season, however, Miss Coghlan's contract with her manager, Augustus Pitou, expressly declared that Mr. Clinton J. Edgerly should have nothing to do with the dramatic management of his charming wife. So Rose went off with her company to "Jocelyn" through the country, while her lord and master remained at home. Miss Coghlan's season ende I successfully a few weeks ago at the Star Theatre in this city. Last week the sale of her household effects, which she was very oreful to announce belonged exclusively to her, seemed to point to a condition of things that was unsuspected. It is now said that Mr. and Mrs. Edgerly did not live rappily together. She was older than he—with all due deference to such a subject as age. Then it is declared tout he was given to making criticisms, while she was not at all inclined to accept them. A shalow came between them, and now comes the news that they have agreed to separa'e.

This is nothing less than a disappointment, but it seems to be lact. Miss Coghlan is now at the Manhattan Beach Hotel with her sarring tour in San Francisco under Mr. Piton's management. Mr. Edgerly has rooms at the Lambs' Club, nd is devoting himself to life insurance, having apparently discovered that there is no such thing as love-insurance.
